

Duke Eating Disorders Program

Description:

The Duke Eating Disorders Program is a multidisciplinary, outpatient program that provides the following services for the treatment of eating disorders: individual/family therapy, group parent training program, group therapy, nutrition services, medical management, and medication consultation. Initially, anyone who seeks treatment at the Duke Eating Disorder Clinic undergoes a thorough evaluation that includes a psychological interview and medical exam. Based on the results of the initial assessment, we present patients with an individualized treatment plan that delineates specific areas of skill development that we feel would be particularly beneficial.
