

Ranch2300

Description:

Ranch2300 provides a specialized residential program that is dedicated exclusively to women with eating disorders. This 90-day program includes an individualized, skills-focused treatment plan integrating Twelve Step and Intuitive Eating principles.

Ranch2300 is located in the peaceful plains of West Texas, outside of Lubbock off of County Road 2300. This Texas residential setting is a nurturing environment, providing recovery support in a 14-bed residence for 90 days in addition to 9 months of recovery protection support.

Our highly trained treatment team and support staff provide safety, accountability, and structure for our clients. Each therapist at Ranch2300 holds a masters or doctoral level degree and specializes in Eating Disorders. In addition to having daily access to their Ranch2300 therapist and Recovery Protection Coordinator, clients have nursing staff around the clock on campus and also meet at least twice a week with a physician and dietician.
